

Yazmine Goode

Yazmine opens her personal statement by describing an analogy between life and a snow globe. She goes on to state that she was abandoned by her biological mother. Her father remarried, and together with her stepmom and step siblings, she now considers her family to have a strong foundation.

But as she states, life is not all peaches and cream. One sibling has serious mental issues. Yazmine states she struggled to find a sense of belonging. In order to cope, she started learning web and film design. She loves coding and creating websites. From her experiences she knew her niche would be Computer Science – specifically a software developer, perhaps working for one of the industry giants.
